Hackney Today is published by the London Borough of Hackney. It has a print run of 108,000 copies and is delivered free to every home and business in the borough. The Council uses it to communicate public service information to residents. It is published fortnightly in order to carry statutory advertising, such as planning and traffic notices, which is cheaper for the taxpayer than using another local paper. The law does not allow for statutory notices to be published solely online or in a less frequent publication.

The paper's official, door-to-door delivery is 91,412 copies per issue, according to Audit Bureau of Circulations (ABC)

Paid for advertising is carried in the paper to keep costs to a minimum. We reserve the right to refuse advertising. The products and services advertised in this paper do not carry the endorsement of Hackney Today or London Borough of Hackney

Hundreds of new homes are being built at the Kings Crescent Estate in Stoke Newington

More social homes

TWO developments in Stoke Newington are set to deliver hundreds of new homes for residents.

At Kings Crescent Estate – located between Brownswood Road, Green Lanes and Queens Drive – the Council, in partnership with Higgins Construction, is demolishing existing housing and building new properties in order to increase the number of Council homes for social renting from 195 to 275.

This will also provide 115 new shared ownership homes, and 376 for private sale to help pay for the works, in the absence of government funding.

Kings Crescent is the only Council and resident-led regeneration estate in London to combine the refurbishment of existing Council blocks with the construction of new homes for social rent, shared ownership and private sale.

Steve Leakey, Managing

We are committed to delivering new Council homes for social renting

Cllr Glanville with Samantha Penny and David Larkin from North and South Defoe Residents' Association, at Aikin Court

Director of Higgins Construction, said: "Kings Crescent is one of our flagship developments and is an excellent example of how we are working with the local community to ensure that we employ local labour and deliver a project that existing and future residents will be proud of."

Also in Stoke Newington, Aikin Court on Barbauld Road, is being demolished

after being partially empty for several years, due to subsidence and other issues. Following planning permission in December last year, it has now been knocked down to make way for four new Council homes for social renting, and three for private sale to pay for the development.

David Larkin, a member of the North and South Defoe Residents'

Association, accompanied other association members and Cllr Philip Glanville, Cabinet Member for Housing, to the Aikin Court site to see the progress of demolition works.

He said: "The residents' association has worked hard in partnership with the Council to get new homes for social rent at Aikin Court. We're delighted to see that work is now under way at the site."

Cllr Glanville added: "Despite highly challenging financial circumstances, we are committed to delivering new Council homes for social renting at sites large and small across Hackney."

"Amid the housing crisis, it's vital that councils find new ways to pay for social rented homes to be built, seeing as there is no government funding for them anymore."

Both sites form part of the Council's borough-wide programme to deliver 2,760 homes across several estates.

Perking up the park

Mabley Green, in Homerton, is set to be transformed with orchards, an all-weather pitch and play area

A COMMUNITY growing area and new leisure facilities are set to transform the landscape of a Hackney park.

Tree-planting and landscaping are due to begin this month to sculpt the mainly flat grass plain of Mabley Green into rolling orchards and a food growing area.

This will be managed by local people and it is hoped the crops could supplement the diets of hundreds of residents.

The project will also see a new all-weather pitch installed; a new play area designed for children on the autistic spectrum; natural play facilities and an ecology area.

Hundreds of trees will

Mabley Green is set to be transformed by this exciting new project also be planted across the park, improving the site's biodiversity and landscape.

The funding for the biodiversity improvements and natural play facilities is coming from The Veolia Environmental Trust, which was awarded £36,000 through the Landfill Communities Fund.

The growing project was spearheaded by the Mabley Green User Group (MGUG), a group of residents who live near to the site in Homerton Road, who suggested the idea to the Council before helping develop the plans.

Partnerships were also formed with local organisations, including

Sanctuary Housing, the Thamesmead Estate Working Party, and the London Orchard Project.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: "Mabley Green is set to be transformed by this exciting new project. The food growing area will be a place where people of all ages and backgrounds can meet up, have fun, learn, and enjoy planting and tending trees and shrubs, before later enjoying the fruits of their labour."

Hollywood heartthrob and Hackney hero picks up two acting awards

Idris Elba in hit TV series 'Luther'

EX Holly Street resident and Hollywood superstar Idris Elba has taken home two coveted Screen Actors Guild (SAG) awards.

The 43-year-old actor and DJ, who rose to fame for his role as Stringer Bell in HBO hit crime series 'The Wire', won outstanding performance by a male actor in a supporting role for 'Beasts of No Nation', and outstanding performance by a male actor in a TV movie or miniseries for 'Luther' at the ceremony on 30 January. Controversially, the Hackney heartthrob has been overlooked for the Oscars.

While picking up his gongs, Idris said: "Ladies and gentlemen, welcome to diverse TV."

Much of 'Luther' is filmed in Idris's old stomping ground of Hackney, with the support of the Council's film office.

The win follows the actor's OBE award for services to drama in the Queen's New Year's honours list this year.

Hackney projects benefit from over £25.7m lottery funding

OVER £25.7million of National Lottery funding has been awarded to projects across Hackney in the past year. Some 276 lottery grants were given out in the borough during 2015, including: £10,000 to Millfields Community School, E5, to create a safe outdoor play area; £9,900 to Hackney City Farm, E2, to build a resource store; £5,282 to the Huddleston Centre, E5, to install non-slip covering on internal and external stairs to make the building more accessible for users; and £311,664 to Hackney Pirates, E8, to provide after-school educational activities for children, aged nine to 12-years-old, who are under achieving at school.

The above projects, or any other organisation that has received National Lottery funding, are now eligible to enter this year's National Lottery Awards.

Last year, Hackney education charity The Ministry of Stories was voted the UK's best arts project, and received £2,000 cash at its Hoxton headquarters. National Lottery Awards are given across seven categories: sport, heritage, arts, environment, health, education and voluntary/charity.

To nominate your favourite project in this year's awards, visit: www.lotterygoodcauses.org.uk; tweet @LottoGoodCauses; or call 020 7293 3599. Entries must be received by 12midnight on 9 March.

THE British government said they would take 1,000 Jewish children," said Solly Irving. Adding: "But they could not find 1,000 to take."

It was the end of the Second World War and Solly, a 14-year-old Polish Jew, was one of the 'lucky' ones. He had been liberated from the Theresienstadt concentration camp, in Czechoslovakia, and was to be taken to a new life in England.

Against all odds, he had survived the Nazi's murderous mission to exterminate the entire Jewish population, and the other 'undesirables', of Europe. Nearly 7 million Jews, including his entire extended family, had not.

Solly, now in his 80s, had grown up in Eastern Poland, with his mother, father and sisters, and was just nine-years-old when war broke out in 1939.

When the Nazis came to his village Solly and a sister managed to escape but, tragically, he was forced to abandon her when she was caught by a Polish farmer.

Solly, alone and still not yet a teenager, survived for months on the run 'trying to find food, trying to stay hidden', before he was captured and imprisoned by the Nazis.

He was sent to four

“War is never the answer; violence is never the answer; torture is never the answer” labour camps, including Buchenwald and then later Theresienstadt – the setting of a Nazi propaganda film depicting a 'model Jewish settlement' and which also served to dupe visiting Red Cross workers.

In fact, tens of thousands of camp inmates were worked, starved, or tortured to death.

Solly's remarkable story of survival was down to a mixture of determination, luck and also the parting words of his father, who had urged him: "Stay alive and tell people what is happening."

And that's what Solly has been doing ever since, including at the Holocaust Memorial Day service in

Hackney Town Hall on 27 January, where around 100 members of the public, dignitaries and students gathered to hear his story and pay their respects to those who died at the hands of the Nazi regime, as well as to all those who have been murdered in genocides since.

This year's event had the theme 'Don't Stand By'. The service heard from Year 10 students of The Urswick School, who described what they had learned from studying the Holocaust.

One pupil said: "War is never the answer; violence is never the answer; torture is never the answer. We all wish, hope, dream and pray [that we can] overcome fear, injustice and violence."

Reflections also came from Cllrs Harvey Odze and Ian Sharer. Cllr Odze told the room: "Racism and extremism are not confined to a political ideal or geographical place. When you see something happening, you must stand up and be counted."

He added: "Hackney is one of the most diverse places in the country and I am proud that we live in harmony in this borough."

Cllr Sade Etti, Speaker of Hackney, added: "Goodness often begins in small steps and heroes evolve."

She finished with a quote from Martin Luther King: "Even if I knew that tomorrow the world would go to pieces, I would still plant my apple tree."

Also included in the service were songs by the choir of Simon Marks Jewish Primary School and statements of commitment to equality from members of the Council and students from Mossbourne Community Academy, Stoke Newington School and The Urswick School.

After the service, Cllr Etti placed a floral tribute at the Holocaust memorial tree, in Town Hall Square.

KEY FACT

It is estimated that 11 million people died in the Holocaust, between the years 1939 and 1945

The Art of War: Posters and Propaganda from the First World War opens on 23 February

'The Art of War: Posters and Propaganda from the First World War' opens at Hackney Museum on 23 February and exhibits over 30 original recruitment posters on loan from Hackney Archives

Discover the art of war

A FREE exhibition opening at Hackney Museum puts 'the art of war' under the spotlight, examining the role that advertising played on recruitment to the armed forces during the First World War, and how the conflict was viewed within Hackney itself.

The Art of War: Posters and Propaganda from the First World War' opens on 23 February and features over 30 original recruitment posters donated to the borough in 1924 by then-MP for Hackney, Leonard Benjamin Franklin.

These same posters appeared across the borough during the war, while recruitment offices were set up in public buildings, often signing up hundreds of local men in a single day.

The 10th Battalion County of London Regiment headquarters, for example, was set up near Mare Street, where the Hackney Service Centre stands today. In Hackney, Shoreditch and Stoke Newington around 27,000 men responded to the recruitment campaigns and signed up to serve.

The posters used to recruit these men show a country united in battle. In one, entitled 'Step Into Your Place', men of all trades – some carrying pitchforks and others wearing bowler hats – march together into the horizon, slowly transforming into soldiers bearing bayonets.

Another, emblazoned with the words, 'Women Of Britain Say 'Go!'' shows how advertisers aimed

“ The war had a devastating impact on families and local communities, changing the area and the world forever ”

A First World War poster used to recruit Hackney men to war their efforts at women, encouraging them to send their men off to war. The poster shows them proud and helpless, watching their men disappear overseas. The reality, however, was often quite different, and the results closer to home.

The first bomb to fall in London during the First World War exploded in the garden of The Nevill Arms, Stoke Newington, on 30 May 1915.

Around 350 conscientious objectors (individuals who claimed the right to refuse to perform military service) are known to have lived in what is now the borough of Hackney. And far from helpless, women proved instrumental to the war effort, stepping into paid work to a far greater degree and across a wider range of jobs than ever before.

Commenting on the exhibition, Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: "Thousands of men signed up to serve in the First World War and millions lost their lives. The war had a devastating impact on families and local communities, changing the area and the world forever.

"At a time of national commemoration, Hackney is giving people an opportunity to understand more about how people were recruited to fight, while learning about those who objected to the war."

In March, a second exhibition called 'Not In My Name' is set to open at Hackney Archives, focused on the borough's conscientious objectors and their experiences after compulsory military conscription was introduced in March 1916.

Springfield Youth Club's awards recognised the achievements of young people, as well as those who regularly give up their time to volunteer

By Dila Tumer

FORMER England footballer Sol Campbell was the star guest at the 54th annual Springfield Youth Club awards, held to celebrate its young people and the dedicated volunteers who work with them.

The packed-out event on 26 January, at the Anthony Marsh Building, E5, saw over 300 excited young people, parents and friends come together with a host of dignitaries and sporting celebrities to mark the achievements of last year.

Club President, former Formula One driver Sir Jackie Stewart, club patron Prince Michael of Kent,

“The evening was the climax to what has been a tremendous year for Springfield” and renowned football player Sol Campbell were on hand to give out the awards.

The evening began with the audience cheering on a group of four talented young girls, from the club's street dance group Nemesis, who brought the stage to life with their incredible moves.

Club manager Steve Herbert then welcomed the guests on stage and introduced them individually, thanking them for their contributions to the club.

Club patron, Prince Michael of Kent, said: "It is a huge joy and pleasure for me to come back to Springfield. I think I first came here more than 30 years ago, and it was a very different club then.

"It has grown in so many different ways. Of course in those days it was a boys' club, and now we have the girls as well, it's been given a tremendous new encouragement and is very exciting to see."

As the evening progressed the crowd was excited to view a short video created by Steve in the style of a yearbook, which looked back at memorable moments from summer trips and activities.

Steve said: "It was a great night, with lots of guests, parents and most importantly club members attending. To have Sol Campbell as our special guest was fantastic.

"The young people could not believe a Premier League legend was at their club! The evening was the climax to what has been a tremendous year for Springfield."

Saffron Hughes-Bramble, 14, from N16, added: "It's a really close atmosphere. Here, you stick together as family, even if you aren't. It's really good. I don't even know half the people

"When I was much younger I played football, it was my claim to fame; I played for my school and county. Then I later tried motor racing. I'm a real dyslexic, I can't read or write at all, so therefore sport saved my life. Without sports I certainly wouldn't be here tonight, I would not have been able to achieve anything in my life because I was really so poor at school." Former Formula One racing driver Sir Jackie Stewart

Singer and songwriter Viv Albertine, best known as the guitarist in punk group The Slits, talks about her passion for music, film and writing

By Harriet Worsley

FOR a long time I felt useless and stupid ... a misfit. That's how lots of poor young people are made to feel," says Viv Albertine, former guitarist with iconic punk band The Slits.

Adding: "I failed my eleven plus exams and after that I was basically written off. I wrote myself off too. No young person should be made to feel that way. Whatever happens, you can always claw it back. And sometimes, making mistakes is the making of you."

Viv grew up on a council estate in Muswell Hill. Her parents went through what she describes as 'a terrible separation', she failed those exams and was feeling aimless when, at a babysitter's house and in front of a record player, everything changed.

"I heard the B-side of 'Can't Buy Me Love', by The Beatles," she says. Adding: "It had this urgency, this ordinariness to it that I could absolutely relate to. I'd never heard anything like this before. In that moment, everything was transformed for me. I've never really looked back."

Outlets for her music passion were, however, few and far between. She says: "It was very unusual for a girl to be so mad on music. The music classes at school were all classical. I would scan the backs of records looking for signs that girls had been involved in their making, and see how they'd managed it. But their roles were always clerical, or making the tea."

The only jobs that seemed possible to the young Viviane, she says, were 'being a policewoman, or a primary school teacher. That's what young girls grew up to be'. She didn't want to be either.

So after school, she went to art school, where two role models changed her life. First, there was Johnny Rotten from the Sex Pistols.

Viv recalls: "I saw the Sex Pistols perform and that was the moment I thought: I'm

“We were four girls, punks at a time when punk wasn't cool. We were shocking to the status quo” going to buy a guitar.

"They were boys, but otherwise they were just like me. Johnny was from a North London estate, and everything I was ashamed of, they turned upside down and made a virtue of."

The second was fashion designer Vivienne Westwood. Viv says: "I used to go to her shop and was blown away by this strong woman."

"I'd never met or even seen a woman doing something powerful before. And she'd had no training. I thought: if she can make clothes out of old cast-offs, clothes where the seams show, whose mistakes are celebrated, maybe I can do the same with music."

Emboldened, Viv joined The Slits in 1977. The band came to be seen as a defining element of the punk movement. At the time, however, their rebellion was not easy.

Viv recalls: "We were four girls, punks at a time when punk wasn't cool. We were shocking to the status quo. DJs wouldn't play our music, it was dangerous for us to get on the tube or walk down the street.

"But I felt like I'd finally found myself. I finally looked like the person I felt inside. I was wearing my identity like a billboard. And because we had each other, we felt strong. We were like little warriors."

And then, five years later in 1982, it was over. She says: "We'd had our moment, and Britain had moved on to the next big thing. It was agony, all the friends who'd only been hanging about because I was in a band disappeared. I'd never really been bothered what my medium was, as long as I could express myself. I looked around, and the next exciting medium seemed to be film."

So Viv spent 'a very lonely, very hard period', building up a portfolio, applied to film school and then studied a degree course, during which, she says: "I had to learn to use a completely different part of my brain."

It was, however, worth it. A successful career as a director followed. Then, in 2009, she began performing again as a solo artist, touring the UK and USA and releasing a solo album, 'The Vermilion Border', in 2012.

Today, living in Hackney with her daughter, it is writing that excites her most. In 2014, her memoir was published to critical acclaim, and she is currently working on a second book.

She says: "I had always felt like I was a bit of a dabbler, but in the process of writing I discovered that all the things I'd done were interconnected and valuable.

"I think many girls are terrified of failure. Boys are raised to pick themselves up and carry on. It wasn't till I wrote the book that I realised how important all my failures had been. Even though society had told me over and over again how wrong my choices were, I was right to follow my own wiggly path."

The Council has been shortlisted for up to £12,000 in funding and plans to use the money to rejuvenate Mark Street Gardens in Shoreditch (above)

X marks the spot

Up to £12,000 can be won to help spruce up a popular green space in Hackney.

Council plans to use the money to rejuvenate Mark Street Gardens, a busy lunch spot in the heart of Shoreditch, have been shortlisted for the funding.

Now it needs the public vote to secure the cash for the project.

Either £8,000, £10,000 or £12,000 is available from the Tesco Bags of Help Grant Scheme, which sees money raised by the plastic bag tax directed into community projects,

“Mark Street Gardens is a wonderful little pocket of calm and green” depending on the amount of votes cast for the project.

The works – which will be carried out by volunteers – are set to include the installation of new, and refurbishment of existing, seating to cater for those who use the park to lunch and picnic.

Other proposed works, depending on the amount of money won, are set to include the refurbishment of a decorative water fountain; the installation of a circular bench around one of the park's monuments; and sub-tropical planting which will take advantage of the park's unusual sheltered micro-climate.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: “I'm delighted our project has been picked by Tesco. Mark Street Gardens is a wonderful little pocket of calm and green in the heart of one of London's busiest and most built-up areas, and is widely used by residents and workers to relax and enjoy lunch.

“At the minute there is not enough seating to meet demand and these improvements would not only allow more people to enjoy the park but also improve the look of it.”

Residents can vote in Tesco stores from 27 February until 6 March. Works on the park are due to start in April.

Grab a Hackney beer made with stale bread, and help tackle food waste

Toast Ale by Hackney Brewery & charity Feedback

A HACKNEY brewery has performed a small miracle: turning unwanted bread into beer.

Toast Ale, which launched on 25 January, has been developed by Hackney Brewery and the food waste charity Feedback. It collects surplus bread from bakeries and delis in the area, before mashing it into breadcrumbs, and brewing them with malted barley, hops and yeast.

The toasted bread is said to ‘add caramel notes that balance the bitter hops’, giving a malty taste similar to amber ales and wheat beers.

Its makers hope the beer, which is available from retailers, pubs and restaurants, will help to reduce wastage from the 24 million slices of bread thrown away every day in the UK.

Tristram Stuart, Feedback founder, said: “Tackling the global issue of food waste has taken me all over the world. We hope to eventually put ourselves out of business. The day there's no waste bread is the day Toast Ale can no longer exist.”

In the meantime, the beer costs £3 for a 330ml bottle and all profits will be ploughed back into the charity, which aims to halve food waste by 2030, after it reported that 15 million tons of food are wasted every year across the UK.

RESIDENTS who roll up their sleeves and clean up their community could be given £1,500 for their hard work. Applications have opened for the Mayor of London's 2016 Capital Clean-up scheme, which awards grants to Londoners to spruce up their neighbourhood. This year, in honour of the Queen's 90th birthday, 100 clean-up kits are also available, containing litter pickers, gloves and rubbish bags.

Last year, a record 4,600 volunteers took part in the annual scheme, clocking up a collective 17,000 hours of work and cleaning up parks, streets, estates, residential areas and waterways. This year, further efforts will be focused around the 'Clean for the Queen' weekend of 4 to 6 March.

Fly tipping fine for cafe in E8

A Hackney cafe has been fined £1,700 for dumping rubbish in the street.

The owners of Hackney Bureau, E8, pleaded guilty to three charges of fly tipping at Thames Magistrates Court on 22 January. Council officers found bags of rubbish dumped outside the building on Mare Street on three separate occasions.

Cllr Feryal Dermici, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods and Sustainability, said: “Our staff do a great job keeping Hackney's streets clean, but we need businesses to do their bit too. That means making sure their rubbish is collected by an authorised waste carrier instead of dumping it on the street.”

A large, stylized graphic of a runner in mid-stride, wearing a red and yellow top, blue leggings, and orange shoes, is positioned on the left side of the advertisement. The background is a gradient of teal and blue. The Vitality Run Hackney Half Marathon logo is in the top right, featuring the word 'Vitality' in white on a red background, 'RUN' in large blue letters with a white outline, and 'HACKNEY HALF MARATHON' in smaller blue letters below. The date '08.05.16' is prominently displayed in large white letters. Below it, the text 'SIGN UP NOW AT' is in yellow, and 'RUNHACKNEY.COM' is in large blue letters. At the bottom, there are logos for Hackney, Cancer Research UK, Brooks, Laureus, Reach Out, and St. John's Hospice.

Re:Home

9 Feb-5 March, The Yard Theatre, Unit 2A, Queen's Yard, E9 5EN

IN 2006, Gbolahan Obisesan, Cressida Brown and Emily Randall wrote a play, called 'Home', to document the demolition of the Beaumont Estate Towers in Leyton (pictured), through the eyes of its residents.

Audiences were led around the rooms of a vacated flat in the estate's St Catherine's Tower, following the drama as it unfolded in real time, just months before the set itself, and the two other towers accompanying it, were to be destroyed. Ten years later, the Offstage Theatre company is back with 'Re:Home', a piece of theatre that uses the testimonies of former and current residents of the same estate to examine what our homes mean to us today.

The play won the Kevin Spacey Foundation Artists of Choice – UK Theatre Award and is staged at The Yard Theatre from 9 February to 5 March.

Competition

Win tickets to ETO's Don Giovanni opera at the Hackney Empire

WHETHER you are an opera buff or beginner, the Olivier award-winning English Touring Opera's visits to Hackney always have something to tempt. This year, the company is taking in three different operas (Don Giovanni, Iphigenie en Tauride and Pia de' Tolomei) to 21 cities – including four performances at Hackney Empire. On 11 and 12 March Don Giovanni is set to be performed, with ETO newcomer George von Bergen playing the Spanish nobleman of the opera's title, who travels through Europe seducing women, accompanied by his long-suffering servant Leporello. When his actions lead to murder he unleashes vengeance from beyond the grave. ETO's production transports Mozart's most charismatic villain to turn-of-the-century Vienna. All you need to do in order to be transported there yourself, is enter our competition. Hackney Today has a pair of tickets to give away to the performance on 11 March. For more info visit: www.hackneyempire.co.uk/

For a chance to win them, send a postcard to Don Giovanni competition, Hackney Today, 1st Floor, Maurice Bishop House, 17 Reading Lane, E8 1NN; or e-mail: htnews@hackney.gov.uk by 19 February. All entries must include a name, address telephone number. Winners will be pulled out of a hat.

BREATHE Festival

26 Feb-3 March, The Old Church, Stoke Newington, N16 0JR

YOU can't touch it, you can't see it, but all life depends on it and a new festival in Stoke Newington is about to celebrate it. BREATHE is a three-week festival themed around the subject of air. From 26 February to 20 March, The Old Church in Stoke Newington will stage performances from musicians and workshops encouraging people to sing, dance and meditate. At the festival's heart is VOX, a wind harp that senses the movement of air, high up in the tower of nearby St Mary's Church, and translates those subtle vibrations into light, colour and sound art. The installation will be open to the public at regular intervals and will have, on some evenings, a pop-up bar. Performances and commissions from artists, dancers and storytellers, including the Candoco Dance Company and Karine Polwart, will all respond to the harp, as well as the themes of breath and air.

Among the festival workshops is Tilt, when visitors will be invited to make windmills that will be exhibited, en masse, in the churchyard. Community singing project KITE, meanwhile, will invite people to work with internationally renowned artist Ansuman Biswas for 24 hours.

The Disability Tennis Festival at Lee Valley Hockey and Tennis Centre saw 89 young people pick up a racquet; coach Olivier with student (inset)

Festival's a smash hit

OCAL school children were going for gold at a tennis festival in Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park.

Primary pupils from 13 mainstream and special schools across Hackney, Tower Hamlets, Newham and Waltham Forest were invited to the annual disability tennis festival at the Lee Valley Hockey and Tennis Centre on 29 January.

The event gave children with a range of conditions, including autism and physical impairments, the chance to play tennis on the same courts where Belgium's Joachim Gerard was crowned men's NEC Wheelchair Tennis Master in December.

“The kids all fully embraced the activities on offer and engaged with the coaches”

Jack Pringle, Sports Development Officer at Lee Valley Regional Park Authority, said: "This unforgettable event saw 89 young people pick up a racquet at the state-of-the-art facility to play fun tennis-themed games and improve fitness, social skills, mobility and coordination.

"The kids all fully embraced the activities on offer and really engaged with the coaches. The turnout was fantastic and events like these are a vital part of getting more children involved in sport."

The disability tennis festival is run in partnership with the Tennis Foundation, Britain's leading tennis charity.

News in brief

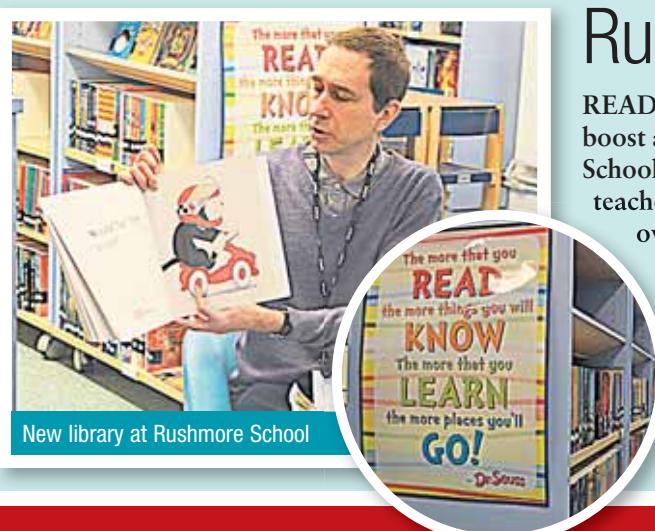

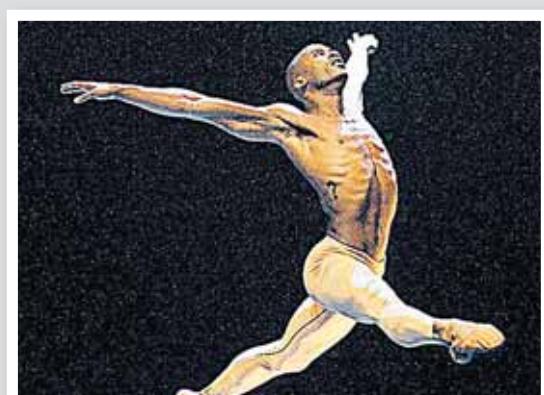

Top ballet dancer challenges boys' attitude to dance

A GROUP of football mad schoolboys have been converted to dance by the Royal Ballet soloist Eric Underwood. The Year 4, 5 and 6 students, from Berger School, E9, appeared on the BBC1 programme 'Inside Out London' on 25 January, in which Eric attempted to challenge boys' attitudes to ballet.

"When I come to a school like this, I can see so many children that are just like me," he said while visiting the school in Homerton. Adding: "And I think: well, ballet changed my life, why not yours?"

The dancer showed his students films of ballet dancers at work, and talked to them about his own experiences, before guiding them through workshops.

Growing up in a poor and violent neighbourhood of Washington DC, in America, Underwood discovered ballet at 14, won a scholarship and shot to international fame.

New library at Rushmore School

Rushmore primary raises money for new look library

READING has received a boost at Rushmore Primary School, E5, after its parent teacher association raised over £10,000 to fund a new library.

Holding cake sales, school fairs, and sponsorship challenges all helped the school community raise enough money to build the library, which now has new shelving and new books. The collection even includes books signed by famous authors and illustrators such as Quentin Blake, Malorie Blackman, Jacqueline Wilson and Michael Morpurgo.

The library was officially unveiled on 21 January, when the children's author and creator of television show 'Q Pootle 5', Nick Butterworth, cut a ribbon to declare it open.

Chair of Governors, Carys Miller, said: "We are really proud of our reading at Rushmore and of our new wonderful library, full of interesting, exciting and inspiring books."

"We want to say thank you to everyone who helped us make this project happen, our children, parents and carers, parent teacher association, teachers, staff and everyone who raised money to make our library dream a reality, as well as to the many kind authors who donated books."

Food Waste Recycling Study

Researchers at the University of Sussex would like to invite you to take part in a study looking at people's thoughts about food waste recycling.

The research is being carried out in partnership with Hackney Council and the North London Waste Authority. The study involves completing an online questionnaire which should take no more than 15 minutes.

By way of thanks, people who take part in this study will be entered into a prize draw with a chance to win £200. If you would like to take part, please visit <https://sussex.onlinesurveys.ac.uk/food-waste>

Prescribed alteration to Sir Thomas Abney Primary School from September 2016

Notice is given in accordance with section 19(1) of the Education and Inspections Act 2006 that Hackney Learning Trust, on behalf of Hackney Council, intends to make a prescribed alteration to Sir Thomas Abney Primary School, Fairholt Road, N16 5ED from 1 September 2016.

The number of applications received by Hackney Learning Trust for reception places has increased each year since 2007. In order to deal with this increase, Hackney Learning Trust has provided additional bulge and permanent school places at popular and successful schools as part of its statutory duty.

Our projections show that Hackney will continue to receive high numbers of applications for reception places and we are continuing to make plans for the future, which will ensure that all children who need a school place, get one. The regeneration of the Woodberry Down Estate has seen the number of homes in the area local to Sir Thomas Abney Primary School increase significantly. This means that additional places will be needed at the school.

Hackney Learning Trust proposes to permanently expand Sir Thomas Abney Primary School from 2 Forms of Entry (60 pupils admitted each year), to 3 Forms of Entry (90 pupils admitted each year), from September 2016. The school will admit the first additional Form of Entry (30 pupils), in September 2016. The school's nursery will also expand from a 1 Form of Entry (25 full time equivalent pupils admitted each year) to 2 Forms of Entry (50 full time equivalent pupils admitted each year).

The current capacity of the school is 420 with an admission number of 60. From September 2016, the proposed capacity will be 630 and the admission number will be 90. The school will admit 90 pupils from September 2016 until the full capacity is reached. The school will be enlarged to accommodate the additional pupils. The October 2015 rolls state that the number of pupils from Reception through to Year 6 on roll at the school is 404.

This Notice is an extract from the complete proposal. Copies of the complete proposal can be obtained from: Ian Hodges, Hackney Learning Trust, 1 Reading Lane, London E8 1GQ

Any person wishing to raise objections to or make comments on the proposal should send them to Ian Hodges, Hackney Learning Trust, 1 Reading Lane, E8 1GQ within four weeks from the date of publication.

A new, natural playground has opened on the grounds of the Church of St John the Baptist, Hoxton, for all the community to use

Community playground

A NEW playground made with natural materials has opened on a site previously so run down it had been closed for years.

The Church of St John the Baptist, in Hoxton, celebrated the unveiling of new play equipment in its grounds on 29 January.

Residents and children were invited to explore an earth-mound mini-tunnel, natural timber play-structure, timber logs, basket swing and bee-friendly planting.

Rev Graham Hunter, Vicar at St John's, said: "After four years in the planning and development, it's wonderful to finally be opening this new community playground for Hoxton.

"The congregation at St John's Church is so pleased to be able to offer this fantastic new playground for everyone in the local neighbourhood to enjoy. Hoxton has some of the lowest proportions of domestic green space anywhere in London, so our shared open spaces are especially important."

The playground is the result of extensive fundraising, led by the environmental regeneration charity Groundwork London. The community also raised thousands of pounds by organising a pop-up cafe, clothes-swapping events and a summer fair.

Groundwork's Project Coordinator, Sophia Bromfield, said: "Getting here has truly been a team effort, with Reverend Hunter, the St John's congregation and the local community having been heavily involved in the design and fundraising throughout."

Clapton and Hackney sea cadets seek new recruits and volunteers

Cadets can develop their skills and confidence on the water

CLAPTON and Hackney Sea Cadets are looking for new youth members and adult volunteers.

Cadets can develop their skills and confidence while taking part in accredited courses, leading towards a BTEC qualification.

Young people will have opportunities to experience exhilarating offshore activities such as sailing yachts, manning tall ships and training on board modern power vessels.

The programme also gives those who are interested in a career with the Royal Navy's Fleet Air Arm a chance to learn how to fly helicopters and other aircraft.

Participants can also work towards achieving a range of qualifications from the British Canoeing Club, British Sub Aqua Club, St John's Ambulance and Royal Yachting Association.

Two groups are held for: Junior Cadets, aged 10 to 12; and Sea Cadets, aged 12 to 18. Young people who are interested in joining are encouraged to attend a unit meeting and talk to existing cadets.

The club currently has 30 members and meets every Tuesday and Friday from 7-9.30pm at their headquarters in Spring Hill, Clapton.

For more info, or to join as a cadet or volunteer, visit: www.sea-cadets.org/claptonhackney/home.aspx

News in brief

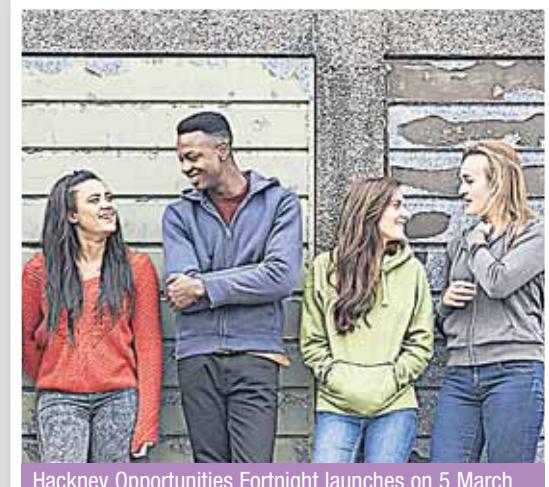

Free workshops for young people to explore careers

A FORTNIGHT of free workshops and events, designed to get Hackney's under-24s into employment or training, is set to launch on 5 March.

Hackney Opportunities Fortnight includes chances for young people to find out from others how a dream career can become reality with educational courses or training. Young residents will be spoilt for choice with events set to cover a wide range of topics, from getting career aspirations off the start line, to how to get back into work, training or education, and how volunteering can help to get that first job.

There will also be creative events to help young people express their dreams and ambitions with art and sculpture; the launch of the Saturday Sewing Project; and an introduction to Bootstrap creative space in Dalston, which includes a Q&A with those that work there. Other highlights include events that will feature inspirational women from various professions discussing their career stories with young people, and a tech-focused event at BL-NK, in Shoreditch, which will include a series of interactive seminars, workshops and activities to promote the different paths into the digital industries and what skills are needed to get there.

Using your local health services over the winter

Don't just go to hospital – if you feel unwell there are many ways to get advice or treatment.

Self-care

Hangover, sore throat, coughs, colds

- The best place for you is at home in the warm - rest and drink plenty of non-alcoholic fluids
- Plan ahead - stock up on plasters, paracetamol, aspirin and indigestion remedies

Your local pharmacy

Diarrhoea, painful cough, headache, other minor ailments, emergency contraceptives

- Your local pharmacist can give you expert, confidential advice and treatment for a range of minor illnesses or injuries – some of them are open every day of the holiday and you do not need an appointment
- Plan ahead - ask your local pharmacy about their opening times, find out online at www.cityandhackneyccg.nhs.uk

Your GP

Ear pain, back ache, vomiting, depression, long-term conditions (e.g. diabetes, asthma)

- Make sure you are registered with a City & Hackney GP. Visit www.nhs.uk to find your local surgery
- Your GP is the first place to go to for illnesses that won't go away
- For urgent appointments call as early as you can, for non-urgent appointments book a week ahead
- You can ask for a same-day telephone consultation with a doctor
- Plan ahead - make sure you have enough prescribed medicines to last you over holiday time

Out of hours GPs

If your GP surgery is closed but you need to speak to a doctor urgently, you can call Hackney's out of hours GP service, CHUHSE, on 020 8185 0545. They will be able to offer you advice or, if required, arrange an urgent appointment. Open 6.30pm – 8am on weekdays and all day on weekends and public holidays.

NHS 111

You feel you need medical help or advice fast but are unsure what to do and don't think it's a 999 emergency

- Call if you don't have a GP, can't access a GP or don't know who else to call
- The service is available 24 hours a day by calling 111
- The service can also help you if you need a repeat prescription filled urgently when your local pharmacy is closed
- You will speak to a trained adviser, supported by nurses and paramedics, who will talk you through your symptoms and advise on what to do next

Homerton Hospital

Accident and Emergency - choking, severe chest pain, bleeding that won't stop, loss of consciousness, struggling to breathe, stroke

- Provides urgent treatment for serious, life-threatening conditions all day, every day
- Get there yourself if you can, but call 999 for an ambulance if someone is too ill to move, can't breathe or you don't have quick access to transport

Emergency dental treatment

You have an urgent dental problem and your usual dental practice is closed

- Call the Emergency Dental Service on 020 3594 0938 to speak to a dentist to get free advice or arrange emergency treatment

Feeling creative? Design the Vitality Run Hackney half marathon t-shirt, which will be worn by up to 15,000 people

Run for their money

ARTISTS and creatives are being asked to take to the drawing board and come up with a design for the Vitality Run Hackney half marathon t-shirt, which will be worn by up to 15,000 people.

The competition is open to all, and will result in the winning artwork featuring on the t-shirt handed out at the finishing line to the thousands who complete the 13.1 mile race, which is set to take place on 8 May.

The annual event is fast becoming one of the biggest on the half marathon calendar.

“This is your chance to have your design seen and worn by thousands of people”

The base colour of the short-sleeved t-shirt is black, and the submitted designs can contain a maximum of three additional colours (one of which is the pink of the event logo), and should cover no more than half the garment.

The winner's signature will be printed on the t-shirt. They will also be credited on the event website; featured in some pre and post-event publicity material; and invited to the race day for a photo call.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: “This is your chance to have your design seen and worn by thousands of people, as well as to get your name out there.”

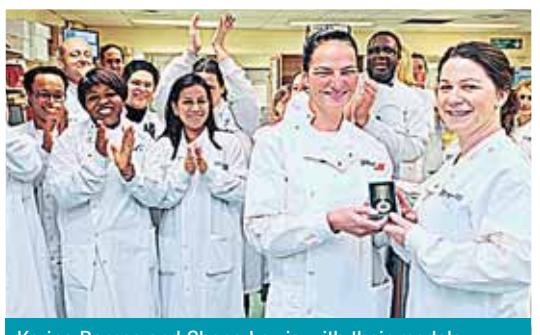

The t-shirt will also display the Brooks Running logo on both arms; the Hackney Council logo on one of the arms; and the event partner logos on the back, including charities Cancer Research, Laureus, St Joseph's Hospice and Reach Out.

The winning design will be chosen by this year's registered runners.

Submit your designs, by 15 February, to: runhackney@go2events.org.uk, marking it 'Jen Edmondson Finalists'

Homerton hospital scientists recognised with the Queen's Ebola Medal

Korina Barnes and Shona Lewis with their medals

TWO Homerton hospital scientists have received a prestigious honour in recognition of their work to fight Ebola in Sierra Leone.

Microbiologists Korina Barnes and Shona Lewis volunteered to join the relief effort in West Africa last year, to combat an outbreak that killed almost 11,500 people. Now back home, their bravery has been recognised with the Queen's Ebola Medal for Service in West Africa.

Korina said: “The call went out for volunteers and both myself and Shona decided to respond, supported by our managers at the hospital.”

Shona added: “The teamwork was fantastic, but the experience was quite harrowing. We were working in a lab right next to where patients were being treated and were dying.

“It was impossible to appreciate the scale of the crisis without witnessing it at first hand and seeing just how stretched the local resources really were. But the opportunity to help was amazing and the scale of the crisis humbled us all.”

The medal is reserved for personnel who spent time in the region, taking an active part in the fight against the killer disease.

Consultant Microbiologist, Dr Annette Jepson, said: “Korina and Shona are two very brave biomedical scientists of whom the Homerton should be proud.”

New user-led health training

A NEW project aims to give individuals the power to influence and improve healthcare. Hackney CVS's 'user-led training programme' is directed by a group of disabled residents, who are designing the training process for the borough's health and social care professionals. By collecting people's good and bad experiences of using local hospitals, doctors' surgeries, community and primary care settings, they hope to give professionals a patient's perspective. The first group session, held in December, included a live discussion on Twitter using @patientopinion to receive feedback.

The group is now set to deliver its first training course to Homerton hospital administration staff this month. For more info about the project, e-mail: jane@hcvs.org.uk

Strategy for tackling FGM

THE Council and the City and Hackney Safeguarding Children's Board have joined forces with health services and the police to develop an action plan to tackle Female Genital Mutilation (FGM) locally.

The meeting took place on 6 February to coincide with the International Day of Zero Tolerance for FGM.

The long-term aim of the action plan is to promote the welfare of girls and women by reducing FGM through understanding the issue locally, and providing support to those who need it the most.

The strategy also includes the importance of training key professionals, who are likely to come into contact with those who may be at risk of FGM, and what actions they should take to protect them. A directory of health and support services available to those affected by FGM is also set to be developed.

To access the strategy, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/public-health; or call: 020 8356 2253.

Wynne-win situation

By Sally England

RESEARCH notes created in the past by antiquarians – people with an interest in their local area – are an important part of the historical material held at Hackney Archives. One such researcher was Wynne Baxter (1844-1920), whose work on the history of Stoke Newington is still being used today.

Wynne Edwin Baxter was born in 1844, in Lewes, East Sussex, the eldest son of a printer and publisher. His life-long interest in local history may have stemmed from his father's printing business, which published mainly local history and biographical books, as well as founding the Sussex Advertiser which is now the county's oldest newspaper.

Wynne studied law and at the age of 23 began his life as a solicitor. At some point he met Kate Bliss, who lived with her family in Mildmay Park. They fell in love and were married at St Mary's Stoke Newington on 11 June 1868. The marriage produced three boys and three girls, with two of the boys – Reggie and Frank – following their father into the legal profession.

By 1881, the couple were living at 170 Stoke Newington Church Street, part of Church Row, all of which the family came to own or lease. They retained strong ties with Lewes, with Wynne serving as Alderman of the Borough until 1887 and Reggie running the Sussex end of the legal firm.

Amongst many other roles, Wynne held the post of coroner – first at Sussex, then East Middlesex and finally East London and the Tower of London – for

At all times courteous and accommodating, and ever ready with kindly sympathy and advice

44 years. During this time he presided over more than 38,000 inquests, including the inquiries into the Whitechapel murders of 1888-1891 ascribed to Jack the Ripper; the death of Joseph Merrick 'The Elephant Man'; the casualties of the Sidney Street Siege of 1911; the massive 1917 explosion at the Brunner-Mond TNT plant that destroyed much of Silvertown; and just six months later the deaths of those killed in the First World War air raids.

Wynne's interest in local history must have brought welcome relief from the horrors he often had to witness. His main antiquarian projects were transcribing the Stoke Newington parish registers of baptisms, marriages and burials; compiling biographies of the clergy; and recording the inscriptions on the graves and monuments in the old church and its churchyard. He also made copious notes on the history of Stoke Newington, possibly intending to publish a book on the subject, although this was never realised.

Wynne also had a strong interest in literature and served for many years as chairman of the Stoke Newington Public Libraries Committee. He owned one of the country's most valuable collections of the works of poet John Milton, including a large number of rare first editions, which was exhibited at the local library in December 1908 to celebrate the 300th anniversary of the poet's birth. Sadly the collection was broken up for auction after Wynne's death on 1 October, 1920.

The Hackney and Stoke Newington Recorder of 8 October recalled Baxter's 'unbounded energy which he always displayed in all his undertakings' and described him as 'at all times courteous and accommodating, and ever ready with kindly sympathy and advice, and in his quiet unassuming way he endeared himself to all with whom he came in contact. Possessed of an even and jovial temper, he was suited for the position of coroner'.

The Baxter collection of antiquarian notes was donated to Stoke Newington Reference Library, possibly when Frank died, in 1932. It was later transferred to Hackney Archives where it remains in regular use. Second son Reggie had run the Lewes end of the legal firm and today Mayo Wynne Baxter, formed in 2007 from a merger of May & Perkins and Wynne Baxter, still has offices across Sussex.

The Mayor and councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections took place in May 2014.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see. Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – see map below.

Hackney has an executive Mayor, Jules Pipe, who is not a councillor, but is directly elected by the entire borough. The Mayor is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of Hackney who is elected annually from among the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Sade Etti.

Recipes straight from the ovens at Waterhouse

www.waterhouserestaurant.co.uk

THIS is the latest in a series of regular recipes courtesy of Waterhouse – an eco-friendly restaurant alongside the Regent's Canal in Shoreditch. Chef Rhianne Birchmore said: "I have chosen to make brownies because they are simple to make even if you're not a confident baker. I like brownies because of the softness in the middle and the crunchiness of the outside. You can also make them as chocolatey as you like and can make different flavours too."

Chocolate brownies

Makes 10-15

Preparation time

30 mins

Cooking time

45 mins

Ingredients

- 200g dark chocolate
- 150g unsalted butter
- 100g milk or white chocolate (or a mix of both)
- 125g dark muscovado sugar
- 125g caster sugar
- 4 eggs
- 85g plain flour
- 2tbsp cocoa powder
- 1/4 tsp salt.

use some baking parchment

- Chop the dark chocolate into small pieces. Place this and the butter in a mixing bowl on top of the saucepan of simmering water. Keep the heat low, the water shouldn't touch the bowl. Stir occasionally, and once melted remove from the heat
- Once off the heat, stir in the sugar and 4 eggs. Whisk together until slightly bubbly
- Sieve the flour, cocoa powder and salt in a separate bowl, then gradually fold into the chocolate mixture
- Pour the mixture into a prepared tin and sprinkle the remaining chocolate chunks on top
- Bake for 20-25 minutes. The brownies should still wobble slightly in the middle
- Let the brownies cool in the tin then lift them out and cut them into squares. Store in an airtight container to eat when you're ready.

Method

- Pre heat oven to 180C/350F/Gas 4
- Place a saucepan with an inch of water onto the hob to simmer
- Grease a baking tin (23cm/9in) and

Have your say on traffic calming measures in London Fields

RESIDENTS are being reminded to take part in a consultation to determine what traffic calming measures, if any, should be introduced to the London Fields area.

The Council had planned to trial a road filtering scheme early this year, which would have closed 13 junctions to through-traffic, as part of the consultation process.

However, in response to local concerns and high levels of public interest, the Council announced it would undertake a consultation with residents before a decision is made on whether to proceed with any traffic schemes in the area.

The options are: an area-wide scheme (ie the original proposal of a multi-junction closure to through-traffic); closure of Middleton Road only; a Lansdowne Drive bus gate with possible Middleton Road closure; a Middleton Road width-restriction only; and other suggestions from residents.

The revised consultation is open until 27 March.

A series of drop-in sessions will be held this month, at which residents can talk to officers about the options. These will take place at Queensbridge Sports and Community Centre, 30 Holly Street, E8, on 17 February, 5-9pm, and 27 February, 3-7pm.

To have your say, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/traffic-management.

To request a paper copy of the consultation, call: 020 8356 8132.

Fighting mould in your home?

Tips for combating damp and mould

- Wipe down affected areas with a specialist mould spray. This can be purchased from most supermarkets and hardware shops
- Avoid using products like bleach or washing up liquid as they do not kill the mould effectively
- Wipe down surfaces where moisture settles
- Ventilate your home by opening windows and vents each day
- It is important not to disturb mould by vacuuming because this can increase risk of breathing problems
- Draught proofing can help to keep your home warm
